

CECILE HEBELLE

Transgressive Impulses

Excerpt

Prologue

The true story of Karine and Raphaël, a deeply in love couple. Raphaël is a gynecologist in the 16th arrondissement of Paris, where he encounters a specific clientele, primarily composed of young married women balancing their lives between extramarital affairs and husbands who are often older and absent. The advances of his patients are frequent, fueling his wife's fantasies through their close complicity. Karine, possessing a supernatural beauty and currently in professional transition, detests ease in human relationships; she craves the hunt and the conquest, contenting herself with feeding on what her husband confides in her, without ever being a libertine.

One day, during a social gathering, she discovers a fascinating figure, the head of a major European group, who will turn her existence upside down. By hiring her to work by his side, he entrusts her with missions of the utmost importance, consisting of smoothing out difficulties between the group and its international clients. Dreaming of finding her a soulmate, Raphaël introduces her to one of his immensely wealthy patients in search of a more attractive life, with whom Karine forms a close bond. Soon, they become an inseparable trio, immersing themselves in extraordinary adventures, as original as they are thrilling.

1. The Awakening of Consciousness

Karine was a feline at heart. She loved to hunt by nature. Finding her prey without a hunt or a conquest didn't excite her. They tried swinging relationships in vain, but that was too easy for her, bringing her no pleasure. Her behavior, in comparison to her hypersexual and unbridled nature with Raphaël, was paradoxical. She was in search of complexity, of difficulties; refusing the too-easy paths of access, she was unconsciously looking for a trigger. On the occasion of a social evening in the 16th district where the couple was invited, Karine, during dinner, met a man in his forties who was as funny as he was interesting.

They discussed their lives and their mutual occupations, attracting her interlocutor's attention. This man was the president of a large international group, and he explained the unexpected departure of his collaborator for purely family reasons. Given Karine's situation, he offered to meet her during the week at his office. Delighted with this opportunity, she went to his office, and they had lunch together. This man was a seducer who did not hide his attraction to Karine. She appreciated the charisma in his role as well as the complexity of his character, which fascinated her. During the afternoon, he gradually laid out what he expected of her. She would become his closest collaborator, so close that she would share the office adjacent to his on the top floor, reserved for the group's very top management.

"We have very important clients in the mining and oil sectors around the world. When I travel, you must accompany me, at least if I deem it necessary." "I see no objection to that for now," she replied with a smile. "Let me explain the situation to you in all its details, and I will be very frank with you. Your absolutely wonderful physique is an asset of invaluable worth." "Oh really? To that extent?" "We are sometimes faced with issues that block the progress of our projects, binding contractual clauses, and a bunch of other things of that nature. Your presence at my side could influence these distortions, or at least mitigate them or even make them disappear." "Okay, but how do you see things?" "Business, money is the engine, we all know that! But everything is played out above all and often between the human relationships that people maintain, and your role could be essential!" "So far I follow you, but what would I be supposed to do during these trips?" "That is where the question leads us. You have to use your charms and convince your interlocutor of the validity of our approach." "In other words, you are asking me to..." "Not necessarily, but you must be very open to any type of situation!" "Let's assume... And financially, what kind of compensation are you offering me?" "You will receive a salary commensurate with your skills as well as all the benefits related to your position, plus a commission based on your success rate." "Do you perhaps have a more precise idea of the amount of these commissions? Because what you are asking for is not insignificant!"

"Absolutely! Let's say they can represent several hundred thousand dollars, or even several million per year! »

Karine remained fascinated and asked for time to think. She had perfectly understood what her role would be and what it could bring her financially and personally, responding more and more to the difficulty she was looking for. She discussed it with Raphaël, who saw only an opportunity for his wife without seeing any objection. Karine therefore decided to commit to this new position and settled into the office attached to the president's. The rapport between them was perfect; she was attracted to this man, slowly placing him among her dearest fantasies.

7 - Nocturnal Harmonies

Arriving in the middle of the afternoon after a flight full of euphoria and laughter, Karine headed toward that famous beachside hotel, right on the water, where she booked the same room as her previous trip as well as two other rooms, all interconnecting.

After dropping off their suitcases, the girls were amazed by the beauty and simplicity of the surrounding scenery. While the girls were taking their showers and recovering from the journey, Karine headed toward the beach, certain she would meet Ivan, whom she had informed of her arrival.

"Hi Karine!!!!" "Oh! Ivan, I didn't see you coming! How are you?" "Very well! I'm so happy to see you again so soon!" he said with a smile on his lips. "I came this time, but not alone; I have two friends with me." "Yes, I understood that from your text. Are they like you?" "Yes, let's say the same style, just as slutty as each other. Is tonight good for you?" "Yes! No problem on my end; my friends are back and we are eagerly waiting for you." "Ok, I won't hang around any longer. I'll see you tonight in the moonlight!" she concluded, laughing.

They went for a stroll in town, Karine happy to be accompanied by her tender bodyguards. They were delighted by such a change of scenery far from the yacht and Avenue Foch, rediscovering real life without any masquerade. "Tonight, I invite you to a mysterious and unusual evening by moonlight. We are going to take a midnight swim. We're lucky because the weather is mild! Plus, there is no one around; last time, I walked around entirely naked!" Karine said, causing bright flashes of light in her friends' eyes.

Back at the hotel, she served them a generous glass of her magic potion with two ice cubes added. Neither of them knew, other than its taste, the reason for drinking this alcohol. They took a shower, put on their bikini bottoms, and went to walk along the shore. The air smelled sweet, their feet slapped against the warm foam, splashing their sensual legs in the dim light.

"My God, it's divine," Roxanne marveled, "I never would have thought of coming to such places!"

"Me too, it's a world within a world," Arya added. "I'm so excited," she said as they headed gently toward the fence. "Come on, it's time to go into the water!" Karine suggested.

The contact with the warm water and the little homemade alcohol triggered a totally magical sensation. The two girls found themselves transcended into another universe, laughing louder than ever, feeling only the extreme well-being they seemed to have never known before.

"I feel so good tonight, my dear!" Roxanne said, kissing Karine. "Evenings where I would dream of making great encounters, can you imagine how amazing that is??"

Suddenly, a pretty voice called out to Arya. It was Ivan, swimming close to them without making a sound. "What a great idea to swim in the moonlight," he said to Arya. "Yes, it's fabulous! Just a dream!" Roxanne added. "And finding you here tonight is even more amazing, I would say! I know him well, he's a friend, his name is Ivan!" Karine added, laughing out loud.

"I am so happy to see you again, Karine, after all this time, what happiness!" he said, kissing her breasts. "I am very happy too, as are my friends, to meet you!" "But you are all three magnificent, true jewels taken out of their cases! The moon reflects on your magnificent breasts; it's a real fantasy! Will you allow me to kiss them?" "By all means, even both!" Roxane replied warmly. "They are delicious," he said, approaching Arya and kissing hers. "Come, let's go over there, a bit sheltered behind the awning; we'll be more comfortable to talk. »
